Ensuring Corporate Standards in Email Communications

Lack of control over email signatures used by your employees not only weakens your corporate brand, it also exposes your organization to several legal liabilities. The larger your organization, the greater the volume of outgoing email and therefore the higher the risk. The easiest and most cost-effective way of protecting your organization from liability risks is to standardize email signatures used by your employees and include a legal disclaimer.

GBS iQ.Suite Trailer is one of the world's leading email signature solutions that frees organizations from depending on the ability of an individual to comply with the company's email signature policy. It enables the organization to meet corporate branding standards while maximizing marketing opportunities and minimizing legal liabilities.

GBS iQ.Suite Trailer specifically addresses the needs of global organizations that must ensure email signature policy compliance across different countries and regional corporate policies.
